Mr. Battalle would be happy, as he got plenty to eat on the trip, but for one of his experiences. The party had no dogs, everything was very dry and "crackly" so that it was hard to still hunt, ac- stock raising. cordingly they determined to watch the corn fields at night, as plenty of "sign" could be seen around the shocks. When Greek meets Greek, 'tis said, then comes the tug of war. When "Buck" meets buck, as a rule, then gore is sure to flow. On this occasion it was n old Buck that met a young doe, and that s the strange reason why no damage was lone. Friend Buck was assigned to a stand in a field, behind a great big shock of corn not far from a fence, immediately beyond which was the brush and timber. He waited Now is the time and Kriehn & Wilker's and walted, and waited-like a good hunter, is the place to buy your jeans and flannels as he is, he waited patiently for a long time but finally getting tired and discouraged he laid his gun down on some stalks a couple of vards from the shock, and sought its shelter for a little rest. He had not been enjoying his recumbent position long until he heard delicately eating fodder. When he first heard it he could bardly believe his ears, but be found at Miss Sue Riffe's, Main street, presently there was no doubt that some animal of considerable size was foraging from New Mexico, where they have been for The latest novelties in fancy birds and within four feet of his head. His gun was was, and out of his reach. To get it he must alarm his quarry, or, if it chanced to be a pear, or a James boy, he would be putting himself in its power by moving. So he com the situation. His neck made half the trip The firm of Cooper and Lyons, Page City, around the corn staiks, so that by popping p out his eyes a few inches they beheld, quietly and unsuspiciously feeding within a few inches of their pupils, a large, fine doe. Then he was in a fix. He thought how easily he could kill that doe if he only had a had a rope; or now he could eternally demolish it, right through the shock, if he had twelve pounder Napoleon gun, loaded and properly pointed. Every once in a while the doe would sneeze as she munched the delicate leaves of maize, and every time she sneczed friend Buck was so startled that he came near revealing himself. Then other thoughts chased each other through his bead. Could be not jump right over the shock, light on the doe's back, throw his arms around her neck, and cling to her until he could draw out his Barlow and cut her throat? Alas! Once he might have made the lesp, but relentless time had stiffened his joints too much for such an experiment. Then he commenced to concoct a Guy Fawkes' plot. He wondered if he buried his powder flask in the ground, under the shock, and exploded it by a little train, if it wouldn't blow the doe up, but then he recolors for sale at Gordon & Fulkerson's drug | membered that it would blow him up too, so he began to get desperate. Ahead of all competitors. This popular house meets with the hearty response of the great masses of the general public. The people who themselves have earned their money, and know its value, are the constant patrons of the well known, staunch and trustworthy house of

CONKLING & CO.

It is jammed full of Fall and Winter Goods, and which are being offered at prices that will loosen the purse strings of many an honest tiller of the soil.

First and foremost, attention is called to the following:

FLANNELS, BLANKETS,

JEANS, WATERPROOFS, CASSIMERES & SHAWLS.

They are bought direct from headquarters. A descriptive list would be out of the question, but suffice to say they have the largest and cheapest stock in town.

Without fear of contradiction, Conkling & Co. say that their Dress Goods and Trimmings are the best, most stylish and cheapest in the city, and in these they have no competition worthy of name. They have everything that anybody can find in a first-class Dry Goods store, and at prices that none of our rivals will attempt to imitate.

We would especially call the attention of house keepers

at the old prices, which were so remarkably low.

BOOTS AND SHOES. A full and complete line now open, and are being offered at a small advance of cost. Lay out your money where it will do the most good. No large profits wanted at this house, who believe that the nimble six pence is better than the slow shilling.
